

We have some exciting news to share: last week, the National Association of Home Builders named Waterstone a 2013 gold award winner for excellence in senior housing design. The NAHB is a widely known and respected U.S. building association. The award recognizes excellence in building, design, marketing and lifestyles of housing for seniors. The features that secured our beautiful community's gold medal include our innovative fitness program with personal trainers; unique design featuring private porches for easy access to the outdoors; an easily accessible riverfront walking path with raised gardens; and an adaptable and easily accessible design and structure.

It's thrilling and humbling to have received such a prestigious honor. Kudos goes to the team of individuals and businesses that made Waterstone into the stunning home it is today. The creation of Waterstone was a joint venture of National Development of Newton and EPOCH Senior Living of Waltham, and was designed by Elkus Manfredi Architects. The interior design was done by Wellesley Design Associates and landscape architecture by Stantec's Boston office. Many thanks to the hardworking teams at each of these organizations for bringing Waterstone from a dream to reality!
